INDICTMENT

S6 15 Cr. 769 (AJN)

COUNT ONE

(Conspiracy to Operate an Unlicensed Money Transmitting Business)

The Grand Jury charges:

RELEVANT PERSONS AND ENTITIES

1. At all times relevant to this Indictment, ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, were residents of Florida.

2. At all times relevant to this Indictment, TREVON GROSS, the defendant, was a resident of New Jersey and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of Helping Other People Excel Federal Credit Union ("HOPE FCU"), a Lakewood, New Jersey-based credit union with primarily low-income members.

3. At all times relevant to this Indictment, Coin.mx, d/b/a "Collectables Club," d/b/a "Collecting Club," d/b/a "Currency Enthusiasts," d/b/a "Bcoinmarket" ("Coin.mx") was a Florida-based Bitcoin exchange service on the Internet that was accessible in the Southern District of New York. Coin.mx was operated by ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, with the assistance of other individuals, including YURI LEBEDEV, the defendant, and owned by a co-conspirator not named herein ("CC-1").

4. Through Coin.mx, ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, and their co-conspirators enabled customers to exchange cash for Bitcoins, charging a fee for their service. In total, between approximately October 2013 and July 2015, Coin.mx exchanged millions of dollars for Bitcoins on behalf of customers throughout the United States, including in the Southern District of New York.

THE COIN.MX SCHEME

5. At all times relevant to this Indictment, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, knowingly operated Coin.mx in violation of federal anti-money laundering laws and regulations, including those requiring money services businesses like Coin.mx to comply with federal and state registration and licensing requirements set forth in Title 18, United States Code, Section 1960, and in regulations promulgated by the United States Department of the Treasury.

6. ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, and their co-conspirators engaged in substantial efforts to evade detection of their unlawful Bitcoin exchange scheme by operating through phony front companies, such as "Collectables Club," and by maintaining corresponding phony websites for those companies. In doing so, MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and their co-conspirators sought to trick the financial institutions through which Coin.mx operated and processed transactions into believing their unlawful Bitcoin exchange business was simply a members-only association of individuals who discussed, bought, and sold collectable items, such as stamps and sports memorabilia.

7. In furtherance of the unlawful Coin.mx scheme, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, and his co-conspirators opened bank accounts at U.S. financial institutions, including at a bank branch located in the Southern District of New York, in the name of phony front companies such as "Collectables Club," "Collecting Club," and "Currency Enthusiasts." MURGIO and his co-conspirators knowingly and falsely represented to these banks that the accounts were opened to operate a members-only association of collectables and memorabilia enthusiasts, when in truth and in fact, and as MURGIO and his co-conspirators well knew, the accounts were opened to function, and did in fact function, as operating accounts for their unlawful Coin.mx Bitcoin exchange business.

8. In addition to providing false information to financial institutions to obtain bank accounts for Coin.mx, ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, and their co-conspirators deceived banks and credit card issuers into authorizing credit and debit card payment and Automated Clearing House ("ACH") transactions to purchase Bitcoins through Coin.mx. In particular, MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and their co-conspirators deliberately caused customers' credit and debit card transactions to be misidentified and miscoded, in violation of bank and credit card company rules and regulations, and limited the dollar amount of individual transactions engaged in by their customers, in order to trick banks into allowing the transactions to be completed and avoid arousing suspicion from the banks.

9. In furtherance of their unlawful Coin.mx scheme, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, and his co-conspirators knowingly instructed customers of Coin.mx to lie to credit card issuing banks about the Bitcoin transactions that the customers were executing through Coin.mx. Specifically, MURGIO and his co-conspirators instructed customers to conceal from the banks the fact that the customers were using their credit cards to purchase Bitcoins from Coin.mx and, in certain cases, to state falsely to the banks that the credit card transactions were for the purchase of collectables items and not for Bitcoins.

10. As part of the unlawful Coin.mx scheme, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, and his co-conspirators knowingly processed and profited from numerous Bitcoin transactions conducted on behalf of victims of ransomware schemes.

Ransomware is a type of malicious software, or malware, which restricts access to an infected computer system and demands that the user pay a ransom, oftentimes in Bitcoins, to the malware operators in order to remove the restriction. By knowingly permitting ransomware victims to exchange currency for Bitcoins through Coin.mx, MURGIO and his co-conspirators facilitated the transfer of ransom proceeds to the malware operators while generating revenue for Coin.mx.

11. As part of the unlawful Coin.mx scheme, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, and his co-conspirators also knowingly processed and profited from numerous Bitcoin transactions conducted on behalf of customers who sought Bitcoins for use in illegal narcotics transactions at various Darknet websites. The Darknet websites operated as online black-market bazaars, allowing vendors and buyers to conduct illicit transactions anonymously over the Internet using Bitcoins. By knowingly permitting customers to exchange currency for Bitcoins through Coin.mx, MURGIO and his co-conspirators facilitated the transfer of funds to buyers and sellers of illegal narcotics while generating revenue for Coin.mx.

THE BRIBERY SCHEME

12. In or about 2014, in an effort to evade scrutiny from financial institutions and others about the nature of Coin.mx, and to facilitate the operation of the unlawful Bitcoin exchange, ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, and their co-conspirators acquired control of HOPE FCU, a federal credit union in New Jersey with primarily low-income members. TREVON GROSS, the defendant, who was the Chairman of the Board of HOPE FCU, assisted MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and their co-conspirators in taking control of HOPE FCU in exchange for bribes, which GROSS directed MURGIO and his co-conspirators to pay to bank accounts under GROSS's control.

13. In furtherance of this bribery scheme, YURI LEBEDEV, the defendant, offered to pay $41,000 of his own money in bribes to TREVON GROSS, the defendant. In total, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, and his co-conspirators, at GROSS's direction, paid over $150,000 in bribes to bank accounts under GROSS's control. GROSS, in turn, spent proceeds from the bribes on personal expenses, including payments for his personal credit cards.

14. Thereafter, and with the assistance of TREVON GROSS, the defendant, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, installed his co-conspirators, including YURI LEBEDEV, the defendant, on the Board of HOPE FCU and transferred Coin.mx's banking operations to HOPE FCU. MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and their co-conspirators operated HOPE FCU as a captive bank for their unlawful Bitcoin exchange until at least late 2014.

15. In or about 2014, in furtherance of the scheme to facilitate the takeover of HOPE FCU by ANTHONY R. MURGIO and YURI LEBEDEV, the defendants, and their co-conspirators, MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and TREVON GROSS, the defendant, obstructed and attempted to obstruct an examination of HOPE FCU by the National Credit Union Administration ("NCUA"). For example:

a. MURGIO, LEBEDEV, and GROSS made material misrepresentations to, and withheld material information from, the NCUA concerning the installation of LEBEDEV and other Board members selected by MURGIO on the Board of HOPE FCU.

b. MURGIO and GROSS attempted to mislead the NCUA concerning the financial health of HOPE FCU and the eligibility of LEBEDEV and the other Board members selected by MURGIO to serve as Board members of HOPE FCU.

c. In or about January 2015, MURGIO and LEBEDEV caused a letter to be drafted and sent to the NCUA, which was signed by LEBEDEV and two other co-conspirators not named as defendants herein, which falsely stated that the "Collectables Club" was "headquartered" in Lakewood, New Jersey.

16. From at least in or about April 2013 to at least in or about July 2015, in the Southern District of New York and elsewhere, ANTHONY R. a. In or about August 2013, ANTHONY R. MURGIO, the defendant, opened an account at a financial institution ("Bank-1") in the name of "Collectables Club" to be used in furtherance of Coin.mx operations.

b. In or about November 2013, MURGIO agreed with CC-1 to miscode credit card transactions processed on behalf of Coin.mx in an effort to avoid detection of the unlawful Coin.mx scheme by credit card issuers and banks.

c. From in or about December 2013, through at least in or about November 2014, in an effort to promote Coin.mx and expand its customer base, MURGIO exchanged numerous emails with a company located in the Southern District of New York.

d. In or about August 2014, MURGIO opened an account at a financial institution ("Bank-2") in the name of "Collectables Club" at a Bank-2 branch located in the Southern District of New York.
